LABORERS ARE SUSPECTED OF FIRING CANE

Blaze at Hana on New Year's Night Believed To Be Incendiary—11 Fires Started

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence) HANA, HAWAII, Jan. 10.—Plantation laborers at Hana are believed to have been setting fire to portions of the Hana cane. It is believed that the big 45 acre cane fire on New Year's night was of incendiary origin and that the culprits are new laborers on the plantation who have done nor the severe penalty the law inflicts in such cases.

Sheriff Crowell made a hurried trip to Hana to the Kaeleku Sugar Co. and has been hard at work hunting down the incendiaries. It is believed that sufficient circumstantial evidence has been secured to bring the men to court and punish the offenders.

It is claimed that the big field was fired in 11 different places and that all the fires were started practically at the same time. It was a difficult thing for the plantation to care for all the burnt cane, for the mill was not grinding, and water was low. All hands got to work, however, and water was pumped into the boilers, and fires started, and soon the burnt cane was ground into sugar without a great loss of juice.

KAPAHULU CLUB AGAIN TACKLES HOG RANCHES

After several months of waiting for the results of an investigation promised by the board of health, Kapahulu Improvement Club yesterday renewed its campaign against unsanitary conditions alleged to exist in hog ranches of the district.

Sylvester Kahikikole, brought the matter up, saying the nuisance continued unabated. He further said that the health inspector, instead of making the hog-ranchers conform to the regulations, had been very zealous in his attention to dwellings. As an instance, he stated that he had been compelled to install new fixtures in his house which he claimed were unnecessary.

J. Hodson said the club had been fighting this matter for four years without results. "How many cities in the United States," he asked, "allow pig ranchers within their limits?"

J. I. Arcia said the regulation on swill carrying was not being enforced, and moved that a communication be sent to the board of health inquiring what was the result of the investigation promised relative to hog ranches and swill carrying. This was seconded by Peter Gay and carried unanimously.

It was further voted that the campaign initiated by the club for a law prohibiting hog ranches in residence districts of the city be renewed at the point where it had been suspended.

A special committee on the matter of the lines of Kapahulu road and Kaimuki avenue, on the Beckley estate frontage, reported with a communication from the trustees of the estate in which they expressed willingness to have the matter adjusted to suit public interests, but intimating that this would require to be done through legal process to protect the responsibility of the trust. The committee was instructed to take such steps as were necessary to gain the end sought.

On motion of Mr. Hodson the road committee was instructed to ask the board of supervisors for the services of a man to clear the sidewalks of scrub growths.

The special committee on having Gazette avenue improved under the frontage tax reported that nothing had been done, as the owner of the larger portion of the frontage was hostile.

The road committee reported the granting of Kapahulu road as being in progress under an appropriation by the board of supervisors.

President C. J. Hummel presided.

HILTONOTES

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence) HILTONOTES, 10.—If the proposed amendments to the by-laws of the Hilo Board of Trade are adopted at the next meeting, corporations will have to pay double the individual dues of one dollar a month and co-partnership and firm membership an additional fee of fifty cents. A number of changes in the membership articles are offered.

Judge Parsons has overruled the claimer to the Kaloa title to force County Auditor Desha to pay him his salary for the four months that it was withheld on the instructions of the probate commissioners. In the return filed by Desha he states that he believes that the Supervisor is indebted to the county for more than the amount of the salary which has not been paid. The case is set for argument next Monday.
